Mandarin III

This course is designed to develop advanced comprehension skills as well as advanced competence in spoken Chinese through exercises, drills, and conversation in class. Students continue their study of the written language by reading extended dialogs on various topics in class, as well as completing a number of written assignments, including short essays on aspects of daily life. Students participate in daily formal Mandarin lessons for approximately two hours per day while traveling and during extended home-stays with Chinese families. Classes focus on increasing vocabulary, improving grammar and pronunciation, as well as building on previously studied Chinese characters. Additionally, students will be assigned customized language projects that will give them the opportunity to practice their language skills and develop the oral proficiency necessary to converse with native speakers.
