MFA Critical Thesis Seminar

In this course, MFA Creative Writing and Poetics students propose, research, write, and revise their critical research paper. Class time is dedicated to one-on-one instructional support, library research, peer review, and student presentations. In addition to supporting the completion of the critical research paper, the course introduces students to the role of the writer-as-critic through exploration of critical texts, poetics journals, writers conferences, and submission processes. Open to Creative Writing and Poetics MFA students only.

Course Number: WRI875
Unit: 3.0
Program: Writing and Poetics ALL