

Literature Seminar: Major Authors

This literature seminar gives students the opportunity to study the work of a single author (or a small, select group of authors) in depth and detail. The class explores aesthetic and theoretical concerns that the authors engage, as well as the historical and social moment in which they write. Students read major works by the author and consider critical writing on and related to the author's work. Prerequisite: 3 credits of 300-level course work.
