

Guided Independent Research: Bhutan

This course invites students to explore and research a topic about Bhutan's people, environment, culture, and current issues. Students will carry out their independent study project during their semester at the Royal University of Bhutan (RUB), under the guidance of the NU faculty and the designated RUB faculty mentor at their respective campuses. Following the guidelines specified in the syllabus, students select a topic, have it approved, and carry it to completion in the form of a final paper and formal presentation. Topics may be related to the student's area of focus or academic discipline in their BA studies.

Course Number: BSA350

Unit: 3.0

Program: UNDG Study Abroad